IN SIEGE OF PEKING

The Only Horse That Came Out Alive.

HEROIC CHAMOTS HERE

Man and Wife Who Fought, Suffered and Helped the Suffering in China.

The only horse that came out of Peking alive after the terrible siege, when the foreigner-hating Celestials were doing their best to annihilate the white people and native Christians within the walls of the great Chinese city, compelling them, as they lay waiting and fighting in their fortifications, to subsist on the flesh of horses, is now a passenger aboard the Pacific Mail steamship City of Peking, lying in this port, en route to San Francisco.

"Pepper-box" is the name of this famous pony and he occupies a specially constructed stall on the deck of the big liner.

He has seen many of his comrades eaten, and over the favored head of this particular animal no shining sword of cruel fate hung by a treacherous thread. The word of one high in authority among the defenders in the City of Peking had been given that the life of "Pepper-box" would not be sacrificed to the appetites of the besieged ones until it was absolutely necessary, which meant that "Pepper-box" would be the last horse to be slaughtered for food.

And the little pony proved himself a great deal more useful alive than he would have been as steaks and chops. He is a Mongolian horse and has a nasty temper; he bites and kicks most ferociously, although he means well. But he is faithful to those who know him and treat him well.

A. F. Chamot and his wife are passengers aboard the City of Peking. They conducted a hotel and a store in Peking and were in the city all through the siege, and can tell of many exciting and interesting incidents of that time of terror and suspense.

They are the owners of the famous "Pepper-box." Mrs. Chamot, as brave and fearless a woman as her husband is a man, boasts "Pepper-box" as her own particular property. She is an expert rider, as well as a sharpshooter of no small reputation.

While the shells of the Chinese were flying thick and furious, while the savage hordes peppered away at the walls which protected the foreigners from death and torture, Mr. and Mrs. Chamot stayed in their hotel, nor did they retreat. Their hotel was situated between the inner and outer walls of the fortifications which sheltered the legations. Many a shell went through their hotel and many a ball entered their store. Chamot was shot in several places. French marines were stationed at the hotel and they, together with others, were able to put up something of a formidable defense.

Chamot brought death to many a Boxer through his unerring aim. He was careful of his ammunition and hardly ever wasted a shot. Nearly always would his bullet hit its mark, and one of the enemy would be laid low in the agonies of death.

Mrs. Chamot, riding the faithful "Pepper-box," would move hither and thither, with her rifle on her arm, every now and then bringing it to her shoulder to let fly at some one of the enemy.

The Chinese have had all they want of China. The experiences through which they have gone will last them, for excitement, for the remainder of their lives.

They witnessed a great deal of suffering around them during the siege and did everything in their power to help the sick and wounded and afflicted. Mrs. Chamot did noble work among the wounded and the sick, often at the risk of her life. Passengers on board the City of Peking speak in the highest terms of the courage of the Chamots, and those aboard have whiled away many an hour on the voyage from the Orient listening to the stories of Mr. and Mrs. Chamot.

Everybody has taken a look at "Pepper-box," petted him at a distance, for he bites when he happens to feel like it, and admired him because he was fortunate enough to come through the awful siege with a whole hide.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamot now are going to San Francisco, where they will make their home, and where "Pepper-box" will not be troubled in his sleep any more by shrieking shrapnel and hissing shells.

The Chamot Hotel was in ruins when its owners left it. Fortunately for "Pepper-box," Peking was relieved in time so that the forfeit of his life was not necessary for the physical maintenance of the people.

Mrs. Chamot's mother and brother are aboard the City of Peking, having gone to Hongkong to meet the Chamots.

There are a couple of newspaper men on the Peking, George Lynch, representing the London Sphere and the Graphic, and H. H. Morrell, who writes for the Sydney Herald.

E. Hartmann was the only passenger on the Peking for Honolulu. Other through passengers on the vessel are: G. E. Petts, Dr. A. Bevan, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Chamot and valet, Howard Fallon, S. O. Friede, J. Goodnow, Mrs. J. Goodnow, E. Hartmann, Miss M. Henshall, George Lynch, A. Mallhot, Mr. Smith, H. Cromers, J. A. Stronquist, Mrs. H. McCarthy, Eugene McCarthy, H. H. Morrell, Lieutenant Colonel L. M. O'Brien, U. S. A.; Miss E. Ridley, Lieutenant Charles Rodler, Mrs. Charles Rodler, J. H. Rosenthal, Master Pierre Smith, C. Y. Shearing, Mrs. Fred Wright, S. Hiramoto, Leo Wee.

When the City of Peking came into port last evening she was profusely decorated with Christmas greens.

Away up on her masts were signs of evergreen, and every here and there all over the vessel there were manifestations of a Christmas feeling aboard.

Chief Steward J. H. D. Johnson was responsible for all this and a great deal more.

Down in the saloon of the Peking such a sight met the eyes of those who went aboard the vessel after she had docked last night as has rarely been seen in this part of the world.

Holly, mistletoe and evergreens of every description were artistically and generously arranged all over the saloon.

A huge palm stood in front of a large mirror at the after end of the saloon, and in the middle of the palm there shone an electric light, while around about the illuminated palm, fluttering in the pleasant breeze occasioned by the electric fans all over the saloon, were arranged flags of all nations, pretty silken flags whose brave colors mingling with the bright greens of Christmas made a scene most delightful to behold.

Chief Steward Johnson spent a great deal of time on these decorations and put forth his best efforts.

Today, however, is the day that the steward will shine forth in all his glory, and will be voted by all the people on board the best fellow on earth. Today he has arranged a menu which would make the greatest dyspeptic hungry. There will be decorative pieces and pieces that are meant to be eaten, and the probabilities are that those who sit down to the table spread on the Peking today will vote the dinner the best Christmas dinner they ever tasted in their lives.

Steward Johnson has taken particular care to place mistletoe above every entrance to the saloon, so that if any pine for kisses aboard the Peking today it will not be because there is not sufficient excuse for having them, for mistletoe will abound.

The following is the menu for today's dinner aboard the Peking. Johnson has a reputation as one of the best stewards ever in the service of the steamship company, and when he arranges a feast it is a feast that goes down to posterity:

Frozen Oysters. Lobster Salad.
Queen Olives. Celery.
Consomme a la Reine.
Creme de Volaille.
Capon, Oyster Sauce.
Corned Mutton, Carrots.
Cold Smoked Tongue en Glace.
Timbale of Macaroni a la Marchale.
Woodcock a la Chasseur.
Fois de Poulet aux Truffes.
Queen Fritters, Cream Sauce.

Prime Ribs of Beef, Yorkshire Pudding.
Turkey, Cranberry Sauce.
Ham, Champagne Sauce.
Saddle of Lamb, Mint Sauce.
Malay Curry.

Asparagus, Green Peas, Sugar Corn.
Boiled Snowed Potatoes.
Plum Pudding, Hard and Brandy Sauce.
Mince and Pumpkin Pies.
Lady Fingers. Assorted Cakes.
Kissens, Chocolate Eclairs, Bon Bons.
Macedoine of Fruit.
Ornamented Fruit Cake.
Pineapple Sherbet.

Nuts. Raisins. Smyrna Figs.
Oranges. Apples. Bananas.
Young America. Edin Cheese.
Crackers.
Tea Coffee. etashrdilupupn
Tea. Coffee.

HOW TO LIVE LONG.

There is no Rule Which One can Swear by.

The Denver Republican gives the bill of fare of the Thanksgiving dinner of Dr. D. K. Pearson, a man of eighty-one:

"A cup of hot water, a dish of rice pudding, one order of celery and two small slices of cranberry sauce nor nuts, coffee nor ice cream, and part of the turkey was left untasted at that."

Dr. Pearson expects to live to 100 on such a diet as that. Some philosophers might hold that it was not worth while to prolong life by such monstrous means. Undoubtedly most of us eat too much, and the Bryanite objection to the full dinner pail had hygienic merit which was not insisted upon. Moderation in all things is to be commended not merely for itself but as a plausible receipt for reaching old age.

Yet the man who sits down in cold blood to write himself a receipt for length of days is scarcely wise. Doubtless Dr. Pearson would have lived just as long and been just as healthy if he had consented to cranberry sauce and coffee. We read continually of centenarians who have taken by such means every day and of other centenarians who never took either; but we seldom read of a centenarian who lived by rule. Old Parr is reported to have been a free liver and his recklessness is said to have cut him off with a surflet at the comparatively tender age of 102. Why, then, should Thomas, who has made his second century if he had fed, drank and slept according to prescription?

Mr. Perky of Massachusetts and many other ascetic dieters hold that man should live by vegetables alone and thus his life will be long. The land. The theory is as good as another and no better. Too much meat is bad for certain disorders as everybody knows. There are great races that never or seldom eat meat, but is the average longevity among them greater than among the meat eaters?

Mr. Perky and his followers seem to have forgotten the example of the patriarchs. Did Enoch eat carrots? Did Methuselah thrive on potato salad? These delicacies are not for the pastoral stage.

Often the best constitutions fall early and the weakest last. There is no such thing as a fair game with Death; the cards are stacked. To play the game with a manly and cheerful mind, not to depend upon any "system" seems the wise man's part. Let us eat and drink what agrees with us, keep an open and a contented mind, taste discretely all honorable pleasures, and go, full of curiosity and delight, through so much or little of this marvellous life as it shall please Heaven to send us. We shall not reach fullness of years by taking thought for it.—New York Sun.

Search thine own heart. What paleness there
In others in thyself may be;
All dust is frail, all flesh is weak;
Be thou the true man thou dost seek.—Selected.

THE CHRISTMAS FOOTBALL GAME

Punahou Alumni and Maile Ilima Teams Will Meet Today.

The Christmas football game between the Punahou Alumni and Maile Ilima teams will be played this afternoon on the Oahu College gridiron commencing at 3:30 o'clock. As the Punahous were the champions for the year there is a certainty of a hotly contested game to hold their honors for the last game of the last year of the nineteenth century. The team is composed of some old and excellent Punahou players.

The Maile Ilima eleven contains some of the town's best players and being a heavy team throughout will put up a strong fight. They have been practicing steadily and have become proficient in their signals. It is said that the Ilimas have a new play which will be introduced this afternoon and which, if successful, will give them a decided advantage.

In a practice game of the Alumni eleven with the regular college team, George Martin, one of the most reliable men on the former team, was disabled and will not be able to participate in today's game. Charles Judd will take his place. On the other hand, the Mailes have lost Fred Wright, one of their best men. An admission of 25 cents will be charged. The Punahou Alumni will devote their share of the proceeds to charitable purposes and the Mailes will use theirs to defray the expenses of their association.

The line-up of both teams will be as follows:

Punahou Alumni. Maile Ilima.
A. Waterhouse.....Chilton
Center.
B. Joy.....W. Walker
Left Guard.
P. Jarrett.....J. Waterhouse
Left Tackle.
Damon.....Belser
Left End.
Sumner.....W. Soper
Right Guard.
W. H. Wright.....Hemenway
Right Tackle.
Chas. Judd.....Richardson
Right End.
Greenwell.....Wilson
Right Half.
Ingalls.....Johnson
Left Half.
Fuller.....King
Full Back.
Substitutes for Punahou Alumni—A. Walker and A. L. Castle.
Substitutes for Maile Ilima—G. Clark, Schmidt and Eugene Allan.

THE PASSING OF AUTUMN.

The Wizard has woven his ancient scheme:
A day and a starlit night
And the world is a shadowy-penciled dream
Of color, haze, and light.
Like something an angel wrought,
Maybe,
To answer a fairy's whim,
A fold of an ancient tapestry,
A phantom rare and dim.

Silent and smooth as the crystal stone
The rivers lie serene,
And the fading hills are a jeweled throne
For the Fall and the Mist his queen.

Slim as out of aerial seas,
The elms and poplars fair,
Float like the dainty spirits of trees
In the mellow dream-like air.

Silvery soft by the forest side—
Wine red, yellow, rose—
The wizard of Autumn, faint, blue-eyed—
Swinging his censers, goes,
—Archibald Lampman in Scribner's.

MISCELLANEOUS.

There is a steady increase in the number of divorce proceedings instituted in Paris. The number of cases now averages 300 monthly, in which 210 are brought by members of the working class and 90 by members of the aristocracy.

When all the newly elected Governors of the states shall have been inaugurated there will be one Silverite, twenty-six Republican and eighteen Democratic executives. The Silverite is Reinhold Sadler of Nevada.

The penny-in-the-slot system of distributing gas through the poorer districts of London has proved so successful that attempts are now being made to supply electric light in the same way. The vestry of Battersea has erected a large generator system and laid the necessary cables. The fixtures are installed in each house free of cost to the customer, who simply pays for the amount of electricity he consumes. The profit derived from this method of distribution is said to be sufficient to enable the authorities to recoup themselves for the initial cost of the installation of fittings in the houses.

Massachusetts' death roll for 1899 includes the names of twenty-one persons who had lived to the age of 100 years or more. Sixteen of the number were women and three of them had never been married. Eight of the twenty-one were born in Ireland, three in Canada and three in foreign countries, leaving seven who were native born. Six of these seven were natives of Massachusetts. The oldest was 106 years and two months of age.

THEIR COMBINED CIRCULATION.

A German statistician has figured that during the year 1899 the total number of all copies printed and circulated in the whole world of all the daily newspapers amounted, in round figures, to 12,000,000,000. The paper used for printing this immense number of copies weighed 781,260 tons. Loaded on railway cars of a capacity of twenty tons each, the transportation of this huge amount of paper would require no less than 39,063 cars, which, when put in line, would cover a distance of 325 miles, or form a paper train the locomotive of which would be in Philadelphia, and the last car somewhere in the neighborhood of Pittsburg.

SUCCESSFUL CO-OPERATION.

Seventeen colored men of Chicago organized and have conducted for a year a co-operative meat market and grocery store with such success that a co-operative department store is to be established under their auspices. While the patronage is largely from the colored people, there are also many patrons of the white race.
